NEWS OF THE ISLAND OF HAWAII. PEARL HARBOR

The following news of the Island of there is and will be on Front street, Hawali is taken from the Hawali that seventy feet is wide enough.

Heraid and Hilo Tribune. It covers district, and I believe that in future all the entire happenings of the past

In response to a number of letters sent to the various sugar plantations of this Island, about twenty plantation managers met at the engine house at 9 o'clock on Thursday morning. Mr. C. C. Kennedy, manager of Waiakea plantation, called the meeting to order and stated that as everyone present knew the object of the meeting, the first thing to be done was the appoint-ing of a chairman and secretary. Mr. Moir nominated Mr. Kennedy as chair-man, and Mr. Scott nominated Mr. Deacon as secretary, both of whom were days elected.

were duly elected.

Mr. Moir then read the By-Laws and Regulations of the Planters' Association of the Island of Maui; also a letter nection with an enlarged sewerage sysfrom the Maul Association to the trustem will begin at once. I am satisfied that we can obtain satisfactory results by having our own engineers do the Mr. Moir stated that the secretary of the Planters' Association had written to C. Brewer & Co., requesting that their managers on this island be urged to form such an association for the to form such an association for the Island of Hawaii for the purpose of controlling the labor and regulating the prices, and that delegates should be sent to Honolulu for a general meet-ing to be held there on June 4th. Af-

Hawaii, which was voted.

The By-Laws and Constitution of the The By-Laws and Constitution of the Maui Association was then read article by article, as a basis for the rules governing the body here. The greatest change was that not only the plantations should become members, but that outside individuals or organizations would have the benefit of the Association. tion. Parties having contracts for the railroads, discharging of vessels, coffee planters and small farmers who em-ploy to a large extent the laboring classes are thus entitled to become members and in this manner help regulate the labor conditions. The main office will be in Hilo for the present, but in the future it may be necessary to establish branches in the four districts of the Islands to facilitate mat-ters. After the by-laws had been adopted, opportunity was given those pres-ent to sign the following:

We, the undersigned planters on the Island of Hawail, deeming it wise and expedient to form an association for the protection, aid and support of the sugar industry and all branches of agricultural and other industries on the Island of Hawaii do hereby form an association for this purpose to be called the Planters' Association of Hawait.

Thirty-four names were signed to be list, including representatives from the districts of Puna, Hilo, Hamakua and Koha'a.

In the afternoon the following officers were elected to serve until the annual mesting in November; C. C. Ken-nety of Hilo president; John A. Heath, vice-president; Henry Deacon, secretary; F. B. McStocker, treasurer; Geo. Ross, auditor.

The following were chosen as dele gates to the Convention to be held in Honolulu on June 4, to consider the general needs and effect the general object of the Hawalian planters: For Ill'a Mole: for Hamakua Moore; for Kobala, Hind; for Puna, McStocker.—

Porto Rican Taborers.

The question of the importation of Porto Rican laborers is one of much interest under the new conditions, which so widely affect our industrial status. It being no longer possible to contract laborers outside the Union, the search is to find laborers to contract within the Union, and with the Union embracing so many Islands and races as it does now, this should not be difficult. As to whether the Porto Rican is a success as a laborer, there may be some doubt. On his native heath, so far as we can learn, his physical exertions are confined mostly to rolling cigarettes, taking siestas, and keeping up with the shade as the sun passes from east to west in his diurnal journey. In this he is not far different from most of the mixed Spanish peoples of America, who are hardly a cess at any occupation save the posing as "tableaux vivants."-Tribune

American Farmers.

The continuance of the Hawaiian lane laws will, in a measure, keep many Am erican farmers from coming here to settle on lands. Pioneers usually want to know that there is land upon which they can settle and grow crops; they willing to take chances on getting the right piece, but under Hawaman laws they will be obliged to be here on a certain day in order to be present at a sale, and after the long journey neces sary may find that the price of the land is far above their pile. With so much land under long lease to corporations, it is not probable that many small farmers will settle here during the next twenty years, unless the government takes the matter in hand and forces the large holders to cultivate the land or surrender it. Increased taxation for such lands is the solution of the prob lem, and it will probably be the method adopted.—Herald.

Streets in Hilo.

E. D. Baldwin, the surveyor, return ed from Honolulu last week, where he the Cabinet plans for the street and sewerage improvements in Hilo. Ever since his return from the Coast Mr. Baldwin has had in mind the plan to lay out wider streets in Hilo and wider roads in the district, and when he completed his maps he took them to Hono-lulu and presented them to Minister Young and other members of the Cab-

The trouble in securing prompt ac tion in the matter of street widening is the absence of laws which enable us to structed at the first tunnel and work "The country is now in a transitory water has been found in greater volume condition, so far as laws go. I am in than at the point where it was first disfavor of making Front street eighty feet wide, but when I showed the plans and suggested that width to the Cabinet the gentlemen expressed surprise Minister Young favored seventy feet. the roads should be of nearly uniform width. Mr. Brown wants the lines fixed, and when the time comes for wid-ening the streets he wants the work done thoroughly, regardless of obsta-cles, when there is a law by which the government can act. I have had my assistants laying out street lines in different parts of town, and I have strong hopes that they will be adopted. I have no doubt that Reed's Bay land will be included in the new city plan and that wide streets will be laid out there.

Hamakua Roads.

If the roads in Hamakua are so bad that it is impossible to run a daily stage line over them, the Road Board over there should buckle down to work ther some discussion Mr. J. A. Scott moved that the planters assembled conditions. History proves that up to form an association of the Island of ernment without the asking; sometimes ernment without the asking; sometimes a vigorous kick is necessary, and unless the Hamakua residents petition or the Road Board gets out of its lethargy, the road will continue bad. There is no reason why the entire belt line should not be gool enough for bicycles, light carriages and stages.—Herald.

The Riot in Kona.

Deputy Sheriff Overend arrived in Hilo by the Kinau, looking for some witnesses in the Kona riot cases. Mr. Overend says that the condition of af-fairs in Kona is anything but satisfactory. The Japs are evidently out with chips on their shoulders and looking for as much trouble as can be conveniently secured, meanwhile breathing threatening and slaughter against any of their fellow countrymen who do not ome into line and "vote the slate," so o speak. One of their fellow country men has already felt the weight of their displeasure, and now with most of his bones in a fractured condition is keeping the authorities guessing whether he is going to live or die. As has been explained before, the trouble arose through the failure of lapanese lessees of sugar lands belonging to the plantation to keep the group. ing to the plantation to keep the crops a suitable condition and free of weeds. In consequence of which the planters entered on the lands and put n men to cultivate the land for them 'hese men were driven away by the essees, who claim exclusive right to the land during the period of lease, whether they cultivate their crops or let them go.—Tribune.

Kohala-Hilo Railway. President Gehr of the Kohala-Hilo Rallway Company left for Honolulu last week with the plans and profile of his proposed line of railway. These plans will be presented to the governnent for its consideration. The profile s a very perfect piece of work from an engineer's standpoint and shows not only the cuts and fills and the alignment of the road, but gives the cost of construction for each mile in the first division. The total estimate for the six miles will reach approximately $175. 00, the heaviest mile being the fourth, which takes in Honolii Gulch, where there will be fills, a $20,000 steel bridge went for the purpose of submitting to and a short tunnel. The line runs close to the sea for most of the distance, Mr. Gehr hopes for the prompt acceptance of the survey by the government, and says that material will be ordered at ace to come around the Horn.-Herald.

Death of James Mills.

James Mills, stone mason, for many years a resident of Hilo, died Thursday last of cancer in the throat. Mr. Mills was a sufferer from the disease for nearly a year past, and several months ago went to Honolulu for medical treatment. It was found necessary to perform an operation, but Mr. Mil's refused to have it done. He was buried bill introduced into the Senate of the from his late residence at 5 o'clock the United States on April 20, by Senator same day. G. W. Lockington directed Hale:

But it wasn't. The next date recorded by a postmaster is "Kailua, May 12," and the next "Honolulu, May 13." It reached the Sheriff May 17, and now he wonders if there is not a quicker route.—Herald.

Charitable Ladies.

The ladies of Hilo interested in kindergarten and charitable work are to give a luncheon in one of the vacant rooms in Spreckels' building on Satur day next, from noon until 2 p. m. The work in Hilo needs all the encourageacter, something with a good ring to it. A portion of the proceeds will go to the support of the sewing school at Wala-kea, and this fact alone should bring out a crowd. That the luncheon will be a good one goes without saying, for all things "like mother used to make" will be served .- Herald

Captain McClure's Sorrow.

By the loss of the bark Iolani, the Planters' line, running between San Francisco and Hilo, is deprived of one of the best vessels in the fleet. The colani was a new vessel, and Captain McClure had but recently purchased as nterest in her. Altogether it was the close of an eventful voyage. While quarantined in Honolulu on account of ague, Mrs. McClure was taken ill with yphoid fever and died. The loss of the ressel may be said to have filled Capain McClure's cup of sorrow to the brim.—Herald.
